

Once there lived a prince called Rama and his lovely wife Sita.

They had been exiled out of their own home, Lakshmana, Rama's brother, had decided to join them.

Sita was kidnapped. Sita's brother, Sita, left a trail of jewellery so someone could find her.

Rama and Lakshmana visited the monkey king and asked if he could help them find Sita.

The monkey king found a broken bridge leading to Sita and Ravana.

The monkey king built the bridge and found Sita.

Rama killed Ravana and had saved his lovely wife.

Rama and Sita found their way back home. The End.

One day there was a warrior called Ravana and he had a beautiful wife called Sita. They were happy, whole they liked but when... they were banished out there town and their brother came along called Lakshmana. They kept on walking but when...

Ravana kidnapped Sita but luckily Sita loved her jewelry and she had lots on her so she made a trail so Rama would follow it to save Sita...

So Rama went to the monkey king called Hanuman and he asked for help and he said that he can't find his wife and he asked that if Hanuman could they find Sita.

So every single monkey on the island was trying to find Sita and the monkey king found her but it was on another island.

So they made a bridge to save Sita...

but there was Ravana guarding Sita so Rama saved Sita with a special magical arrow and killed Ravana.

and they followed the right home and they lived happily ever after the end.